

Featured D2L Tool

Each month we will explore a tool in d2l to see its function and how using it can connect you closer to your students.

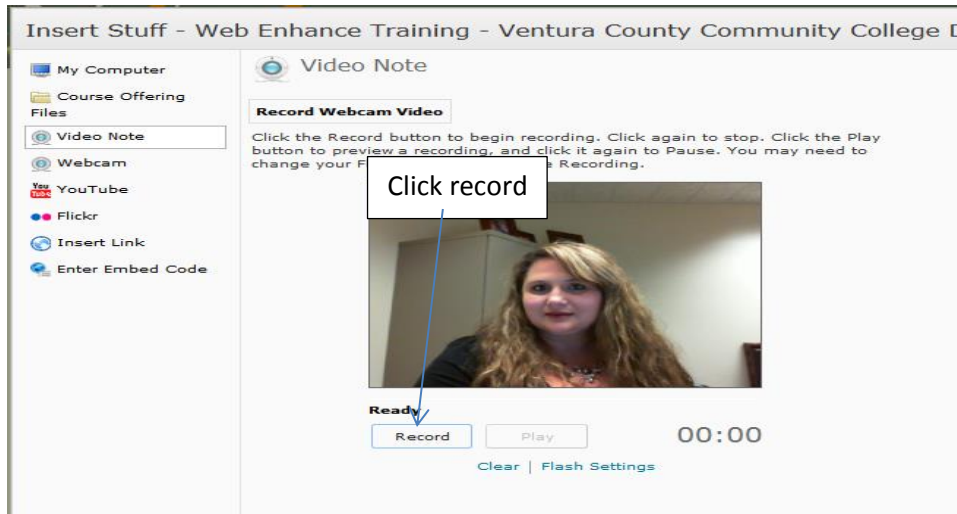

While you are teaching online have you ever thought that you would rather be able to just tell them? Well now you can! Video Note allows you to record a quick message to students Video Note is available anywhere in D2L that there is an html editor box. . I know we all have accessibility on our minds. Once you record your video you can write a summary of what you just said and still be compliant.

In this example you see I am adding a news item.

The image consists of two screenshots illustrating the process of adding a video note to a D2L item.

The top screenshot shows the 'New Item' editor interface. The 'General' tab is active, and the 'Content' section is expanded to show the 'Basic' tab. The HTML editor toolbar is visible, with the 'Insert Stuff' button (represented by a document icon with a plus sign) highlighted. A callout box with the text 'Click on "insert stuff"' has an arrow pointing to this button.

The bottom screenshot shows a file selection dialog titled 'Insert Stuff - Web Enhance Training - Ventura County Community College District'. The dialog has a left sidebar with a list of file sources: My Computer, Course Offering, Files, Video Note, Webcam, YouTube, Flickr, Insert Link, and Enter Embed Code. The 'Video Note' option is selected and highlighted. A callout box with the text 'Then click on video note' has an arrow pointing to the 'Video Note' option in the sidebar.

Click "Next" then Title your recording. Then click "Insert." Then you will write a summary of what you said under your recording in the text box. Finally post the way you normally would.

Students will see your video. In this example I posted it to my News Widget.
